SOUTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY (SD) HOSTS SOLD OUT NEPALESE CULTURAL EVENT

Nearly 7,500 miles separate Nepali students at South Dakota State University from their home in Kathmandu and other points in the South Asian country. On Feb. 9, the SDSU Nepalese Student Association brought the culture of Nepal across the world to the university's eighth annual Nepal Night.

The event showcased cultural aspects of Nepalese life, including a Nepali band performing a fusion of folk and rock music, dances, food and a fashion show of traditional dress from the country's eight regions. Entertainment also included a drama celebrating the Nepali festival of Tihar, which is a five-day festival held in late October or early November. The final day marks the good bonding between brothers and sisters through the custom of tika, a mark of honor that is placed on the forehead.

Traditional foods, like chicken curry and roasted chicken were served, along with a favorite staple of Nepal Night, fruit yogurt dessert. The event sold out and has sold out every year since its inception, attracting over 450 people from the campus and community. Currently, there are 82 Nepali students at SDSU, most of them graduate students and can be found in virtually every academic discipline. To view more photos of Nepal Night, visit our Facebook page.

Admissions applications are now being accepted for fall semester which begins August 2014. The SDSU Office of International Affairs is the hub for international student services and undergraduate admissions, ESL programs, study abroad planning and community connections programs.
